

Grades 3 to 5 • Personal Health Series Peer Pressure

Think First

Objectives:

Students will:

- Respond to various peer pressure scenarios
- Explore possible positive and negative outcomes
- Enhance their decision-making skills

Materials:

- Computer with Internet access
- "Think First" handout, pen or pencil

Class Time:

40 minutes

Activity:

Whether it's preschoolers playing in a sandbox or grannies having tea, one thing's for sure: Friends influence friends. The trick is to know when that influence is leading you down the wrong path instead of the right path - and then to have the courage to do something about it.

Today, we're going to take a look at five examples of peer pressure. For each, we're going to determine the problem (what is being asked of you), the possible consequences (both the good and the bad), and what action you think you should take. Afterward, we'll discuss your responses. Which of these decisions were the easiest to make? Which were the hardest?

Extension:

Ask for volunteers to role-play a few of these scenarios in front of the class. Practice different ways of refusing to go along when you know you're being pressured to do something wrong.

Think First

Instructions: Here are five peer pressure situations. For each situation, use the chart below to think about whether it would be a good idea to follow along or not.

Problem:

What does my friend want me to do? Is it something good or bad? Kind or mean? Healthy or unhealthy? Legal or illegal? Is it something you would do if your parents were watching?

Consequences:

What could happen if I do it? Imagine any possible good results: Will you learn something positive? Will you be helping someone? Imagine any possible bad results: Can you get hurt? Can you get in trouble? Can someone else get hurt or in trouble?

Action:

Should I do it? Will you be proud of your choice afterward? Would your parents be proud of your choice?
