Classroom Physical Activity for K-5 Students: Keep Your Brain in the Game

Research shows that students who do brief bursts of exercise before taking tests score higher. In addition, regular physical activity breaks during the school day can help sharpen students’ abilities to focus and stay on task.

Objective: Have your students exercise for 2 minutes before a test or quiz to improve scores.

Materials:
- Comfortable shoes, such as sneakers
- NBA Fast Break card (attached)
- Timer (optional)

Classroom activity: Have students try some of the exercises described in the “Classroom Exercise Breaks for Elementary Students” article for teachers. Students should vote to choose their five favorite exercises to do as a class at their desks. Before tests and quizzes (or to help students stay on task and focus during the day), students should do the five exercises for 24 seconds each while the teacher uses a timer to watch the “24-second shot clock” for the “final 2 minutes” before testing. Or, students can do fewer, or even one, exercise for 2 minutes.

Extensions:
- Read the “Why Exercise Is Cool” article for kids at http://KidsHealth.org/en/kids/work-it-out.html as a class (or read it aloud for younger students). Then have students do the exercises described on the NBA Fast Break cards.
- Teachers also can improve grades by helping students dispel negative thoughts. As a class, read the “When Tests Make You Nervous” article for kids at http://KidsHealth.org/en/kids/test-anxiety.html (or read it aloud for younger students). Students should write down any negative thoughts they might have related to tests or quizzes on a piece of paper, then crumple the paper into a ball. Have students line up in front of a recycling bin, then dunk their ball of negative thoughts into the bin one at a time.
